Topic Leader: Daniel Betts, Director, Cincinnati Recreation Commission

In this dynamic, interactive session participants will explore innovative strategies to connect, convene, and collaborate on ideas to help inspire active living among youth. The discussion will focus on transitioning from tackle to flag football to prioritize safety, developing esports and gaming hubs to attract tech-savvy audiences, and designing impactful teen programs and licensed childcare services. Attendees will rotate through facilitated small-group discussions, sharing challenges, insights, and best practices, and leave with actionable ideas to enhance or research youth engagement.

With over 25 years of experience in parks and recreation leadership, Daniel Betts is a visionary advocate for enhancing quality of life through innovative programs and services. As the Director of the Cincinnati Recreation Commission, Daniel oversees a dynamic team dedicated to serving youth, adults, and seniors with impactful initiatives that foster community connection and active living. A proud former First Lieutenant in the U.S. Army, Daniel brings a disciplined yet creative approach to leadership, inspiring collaboration and excellence. His work includes spearheading flagship programs like "Rec at Night," championing equitable access to recreation, and driving efforts to expand opportunities in youth sports and the arts. Passionate about community engagement and sustainability, Daniel is committed to building partnerships that empower residents and strengthen neighborhoods.

Coming Each Month:

Connect with other Great Minds!

Each 2nd Thursday of the month topics will vary based on timely key issues from invited Topic Leaders using an interactive online ThinkTank format. They center around conversations related to active living, integration of nature and health, organizational management, parks, recreation, community wellbeing ecosystems, planning, policy, education, and related research.
